Oklahoma ranks among the top 5 in all states for number of divorces. Additionally, a 2001-2002 OSU survey about marriage and divorce indicated Oklahoma is a marrying state, with 82% of adults having been married at some point compared to 73% nationally.

Oklahoma is a divorcing state; 32% of all adults have divorced compared to 21% nationally and a higher percentage of married Oklahomans have thought about divorce (56%) than in the country as a whole (42%). Oklahomans marry an average of 2.5 years younger than the national median age at first marriage, and those marrying under the age of 20 are the most likely to have gotten a divorce.
